

Research Paper

Comparing the Views of Allameh Tabataba'i and Fayz Kashani on Ta'wil of the Qur'an

Tahereh Noori¹ , Ahmad Ebrahimi Dorcheh² , Mohamadreza Sotudehnia^{*3}

¹ Doctoral student of Quran and Hadith Sciences, Isfahan University, Isfahan, Iran (t.noori@ahl.ui.ac.ir)

² Doctoral student of Quran and Hadith Sciences, Ferdowsi University, Mashhad, Iran (A.E.D@CHMAIL.IR)

³ Associate Professor, Department of Quranic and Hadith Sciences, Isfahan University, Isfahan, Iran (m.sotudeh@ahl.ui.ac.ir)

10.22080/qhs.2025.5862

Received:

February 5, 2025

Accepted:

June 14, 2024

Available online:

September 10, 2025

Extended Abstract

1. Introduction

Ta'wil, a fundamental concept in Qur'anic sciences, has always occupied a central position in exegetical discussions. The significance of this issue is underscored by various narrations, particularly the concern of the Prophet Muhammad regarding "Ta'wil of the Quran over other Ta'wil", which highlights the crucial link between understanding the deeper semantic layers of the Qur'an and safeguarding the divine message. Among prominent Shi'a exegetes, Allameh Tabatabaei and Fayz Kashani stand as two pivotal figures, each presenting a coherent intellectual framework concerning ta'wil. Although there appear to be superficial similarities in their general approaches, this resemblance has led to the hypothesis that Fayz may have influenced Allameh. The present study critically evaluates this hypothesis and addresses the following central question: What are the main points of convergence and divergence between the theoretical foundations and exegetical applications of Allameh Tabatabaei and Fayz Kashani regarding ta'wil, and does a comparative analysis of their interpretive practices substantiate the claim of influence? The novelty of this research lies in moving

Corresponding Author: Mohamadreza Sotudehnia

Address: Department of Quranic and Hadith Sciences, Isfahan University, Isfahan, Iran.

Email: m.sotudeh@ahl.ui.ac.ir beyond theoretical definitions to analyze their actual exegetical performances, to uncover the underlying epistemological bases of each scholar.

2. Methodology

This study adopts a descriptive-analytical method combined with a comparative approach. Data was collected through library-based research, relying primarily on the two exegetical masterpieces: Al-Mizān fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān by Allameh Tabatabaei and Tafsīr al-Sāfi by Fayz Kashani. In the first stage, the theoretical foundations of both exegetes were explored in relation to the essence of ta'wil, its relationship with the concepts of tafsir, batn, and jary, and their respective views on those qualified to possess knowledge of ta'wil. Subsequently, selected Qur'anic verses were analyzed comparatively to examine how each exegete applied his interpretive principles in practice. Through this analysis, points of convergence and divergence were identified, and finally, the hypothesis of intellectual influence was evaluated based on concrete exegetical evidence.

3. Findings

The comparative analysis reveals that, despite shared features—such as distinguishing between tafsir and ta'wil and acknowledging inner layers within the Qur'anic text—fundamental differences separate their approaches, challenging the assumption of direct influence.

Within Allameh Tabatabaei's intellectual system, ta'wil is understood as an objective, extra-linguistic reality from which the divine speech originates, transcending both wording and meaning. He defines jary wa tatbīq as a hermeneutical principle that allows the general meaning of a verse to apply to new or more complete instances. In this light, narrations from the Ahl al-Bayt that associate certain verses with specific individuals or realities do not themselves constitute ta'wil, but rather represent jary—the application of a universal Qur'anic concept to its most perfect instance. For example, narrations interpreting “al-ṣirāt al-mustaqīm” (Al-Fātiḥa: 6) as referring to Amīr al-Mu'minīn are, according to Allameh, not indicative of the verse's ta'wil but of its highest manifestation in human form. This conceptual distinction marks the independence and originality of Allameh's hermeneutical school.

Conversely, Fayz Kashani equates ta'wil with the batn (inner meaning) of the Qur'an, viewing it as identical to the esoteric dimension of revelation. He maintains that the only legitimate means of accessing these hidden realities is through the narrations of the infallible Imams. For Fayz, such narrations are not mere illustrative applications but direct unveilings of the ta'wil itself. His exegetical practice in Tafsīr al-Sāfi clearly reflects this epistemological stance. For instance, in interpreting “wa'taṣimū bi-ḥabl Allāh jamī'an” (Āl 'Imrān: 103), he considers the narrations identifying ḥabl Allāh as wilāyah to represent the very ta'wil of the verse. Unlike Allameh, Fayz does not maintain a clear distinction between jary and ta'wil; rather, he grants revelatory narrations ultimate authority in unveiling the esoteric truth (batn) of the Qur'an.

4. Conclusion

The results of this study reject the hypothesis that Allamah Tabataba'i was influenced by Faiz Kashani, given the fundamental differences between them. Allamah, by presenting the theory of objectivity of ta'wil and considering the rule of jary wa tatbīq, explains the position of narrations as expressions of instances. In contrast, Faiz Kashani, with a narrativeesoteric approach, considers ta'wil to be in line with the heart of the Quran and considers the narrations of the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s.) as the only way to reach these esoteric truths and revealer of ta'wil itself; therefore, the findings confirm the independence of Allamah's interpretive school on ta'wil, which distinguishes it from other common views.

Funding

No financial support was received for this study.

References

- Fayz Kashani, Mohammad ibn Murtaza. (1415 AH). Tafsir al-Safi. Tehran: Maktabat al-Sadr.
- Fayz Kashani, Mohammad ibn Murtaza. (1418 AH). Al-Ashfi fi Tafsir al-Qur'an. Qom: Markaz al-Nashr al-Tabi' li-Maktab al-I'lam al-Islami.
- Ibn Taymiyyah, Ahmad ibn 'Abd al-Halim. (n.d.). Al-Iklil fi Mutashabih wa al-Ta'wil. Alexandria: Dar al-Iman.
- Ma'rifat, Mohammad Hadi. (1379). "Ta'wil az Didgah-e Allameh Tabataba'i dar Tafsir al-Mizan." Qabasat, No. 17.

Authors' Contributions

Tahereh Nouri – First Author
Ahmad Ebrahimi Darcheh – Second Author
Mohammadreza Sotoudehnia – Corresponding Author

Conflict of Interest

The authors declare no conflict of interest.

Acknowledgments

The authors express their sincere gratitude to Dr. Hosseini, the esteemed editor-in-chief, for her valuable efforts and persistent follow-up that greatly contributed to the completion of this article.

Moradi, Mohammad; Fathollah Najjarzadegan. (1395). Ta'wil dar Revayathaye Tafsiri (Ph.D. Dissertation). University of Qur'an and Hadith.

Pakatchi, Ahmad. (1367). Dairat al-Ma'arif-e Bozorg-e Eslami (Madd-e Ta'wil). Tehran: Markaz-e Dairat al-Ma'arif-e Bozorg-e Eslami.

Shaker, Mohammad Kazem. (1376). Raveshha-ye Ta'wil-e Qur'an. Qom: Daftar-e Tablighat-e Eslami.

Tabataba'i, Mohammad Hossein. (1390 AH). Al-Mizan fi Tafsir al-Qur'an. Beirut: Mu'assasat al-A'lam lil-Matbu'at.